Chicago Based Venture Capitalist & Experienced Executive Comes to Lansing

LANSING, MICH — This month, Startup Grind Lansing will host Chicago-based venture capitalist Matthew Roszak. Roszak is a seasoned executive who is a founder or board member of more than a dozen companies along with being on the management team of more than 20 companies. He has experience with mergers and acquisitions, having managed more than $1 billion in financial deals.

His experiences do not end with venture capital though He is one of the leading minds in the bitcoin industry, he runs a charity, produced a documentary, and has had dinner with Bill Clinton. He's been interviewed by CNBC; been featured in articles for the Wall Street Journal and The New York Times; and, in the last month, he spent time on Sir Richard Branson's personal island to explain bitcoin. But, of course, like all Startup Grind Lansing events, our interview will focus on how he started, how he made a name for himself, and what local entrepreneurs can learn from his experiences.

Join us July 16th in the East Lansing Technology Innovation Center to hear more of Matthew's story and learn from someone who has managed more than a billion dollars of deals.
